

2/20/91

To: L. Davies & M. Sullivan
Henry George School of Social Science

Re: The Newsletter

As usual, the U.S. has gone off on a "carry a big stick" policy. Economic Sanctions against Iraq were beginning to have an effect towards change. The only problem was, this policy wasn't quick enough for President Bush and his cohorts. Our collective mentality seems to still be, waste billions of dollars on weapons, let the young die for the errors of the old, and to: "continue not to learn from the mistakes of the past" (please excuse the paraphrasing of Santayana)

Henry George wrote about the futility of war, as an economic fixative in Protection of Free Trade. We still aren't listening.

from: Pia Francesca DeSilva

3198