#Such Is The Power of Truth#

On George's Green-Wood Monument
Is his belief enshrined;
The central truth that he made clear
It's many friends would find.

Though often truth may be observed
When once men see the light,
They gladly toil and even die,
In struggle for the right.

If truth were easy to observe
The sooner it would win,
YET ~~yet~~ Nature's Laws remain the same
As they have ever been

The rainbow light of liberty
Gives promise of the day
When wealth with justice will combine
And men will not decay

Sweet Auburn, and great cities too,
That flourished but to fail,
Should furnish proof to all the world
That moral laws prevail.

When wealth is due reward for work,
Not LAND MONOPOLY,
All men may then a living make,
With End of Poverty.
