Dear John:

You may have already seen yesterday's article in The Inquirer by Edward Mathis and Charles Zech at Villanova, but in case you have not I am enclosing a copy.

I have not had an opportunity to contact either of the two authors of the article; however, I suspect their recommendations to be the result of Congressman Reuss' subcommittee report. The fact that area academic figures are now advocating the site value tax is certainly encouraging.

I'm looking forward to your comments on the material previously delivered.

Sincere yours,

Edward J. Dodson
