Mr. Alexander Mackendrick.

Dear Mr. Mackendrick:-

I am returning your answers to questions for revision as you suggest.

As Mr. Garrison suggests I do think these answers should be a little more closely condensed., though they are so admirable that I would hesitate to advise you. And some other phrase should be substituted for "cumulo".

Then, too, it appears to me that the last page is an answer to another question, or a phrase perhaps of the same question that presents itself in another way. You see that I have substituted another question to which this is an admirable answer.

And may I venture to suggest that it might be well if you spaced your lines a little more?

Answers should be limited to two ^{or three} hundred words where possible.

May I also ask you to give me copies in duplicate?

I enclose a letter received some time ago which suggests a to which answer question might be furnished.

I think the answers will do nicely, ^{and I do not think you ought to cut} My thanks are due to you ^{much.} and Mr. Garrison.

Sincerely yours,

Will suggest some questions later, when I can get a few minutes to go over it in my mind. In the meantime, I hope you can spare a few minutes.
