"There is just one Canada and that is all of us," said Mrs. John McCay in outlining the significance of the Folk Festival she will direct at the Art Gallery. Over 40 language, racial and cultural groups will be represented in this blending of the many faces that make the whole of our country. A happy, animated geography lesson all pulled together from in and about Toronto.

The best spoon to stir this big melting pot of a nation of ours into mutual harmony is understanding and appreciation of the backgrounds of the people who live here. And for the people who live here it is a heart-warming thing to be called upon to offer their individual arts to the adopted country they love.

Oddly enough, it was comparatively easy to find all the groups necessary right here. The one snag was an English representation. Welsh and Scots turned up with vigor, but English Folk dancers and singers could not be unearthed. This stickler was solved by asking a well-known old English group from Fairhope, Alabama. Going rather far afield to borrow back part of our original heritage.
